CONGRESSIONAL HAPPENINGS IN WASHINGTON

By CLARENCE J. BROWN
Member of Congress,
Seventh Ohio District

The Republican National Convention, meeting at Philadelphia, concluded its labors late last Friday afternoon with the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie, of Indiana and New York, for President, and United States Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, for Vice President. Senator Robert A. Taft, of Ohio, was the strongest contender against Mr. Willkie for the Presidential nomination. During certain stages of the balloting the nomination of Senator Taft appeared likely. However, when Michigan and Pennsylvania threw their support to Willkie on the sixth ballot, the fight was over; and Governor Bricker, as head of the Ohio delegation, moved to make the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie unanimous. Senator Taft immediately telephoned Mr. Willkie, extended his congratulations, and pledged his loyal support in the coming campaign.

Here in Washington, where New Dealers and Democrats abound, it is the general consensus of opinion that the nomination of Wendell L. Willkie for President on the Republican ticket means that the coming campaign will be a heated one, with the final result in doubt. Willkie is a clever, forceful campaigner, with a charm and personality that gains him the friendship and support of those with whom he comes in contact. A hard hitter and a phrase-maker, it is claimed by many that Willkie will prove to be a more colorful campaigner than Roosevelt. Willkie's running mate, Charles McNary, of Oregon, Republican, Floor Leader of the Senate has long been known for his political sagacity and adroitness. He is just the type of an individual to best fit in as a mate to Willkie on a political team.

Speaking of Roosevelt: While the general public seems firmly convinced that President Roosevelt will seek re-nomination and a third term as President, there are a number of the wise old political heads in Washington who are firmly convinced that, when the Democratic Convention meets on the 15th of July, Mr. Roosevelt will refuse the nomination. In fact, rumor is around that F. D. R. has already informed some of his confidantes that he will not accept re-nomination, but will, instead, throw his support to Secretary of State Hull. The President's reason for not making an announcement of his plans at this time is said to be based upon the delicacy of the international situation. Some political seers freely predict that Hull cannot defeat Willkie; and that the surprise nomination of Willkie, may cause Mr. Roosevelt to change his mind and run for a third term. That Mr. Willkie's nomination by the Republican Convention will cause additional pressure to be put on Roosevelt to run, cannot be questioned.

Congress resumes its labors Monday and will remain in session until July 12th or 13th, when adjournment will be taken for the convening of the Democratic National Convention, beginning July 15th. It is reported that the Hatch bill, further restricting the political activities of Governmental employees, contributions to campaign funds, etc., will soon be brought up for a vote in the House. The Hatch bill passed the Senate several months ago, but has been held up in the House through action of the Judiciary and Rules Committees. Recently both Committees agreed to permit the bill to be voted upon.

The rumor that President Roosevelt will ask Congress for an additional appropriation of approximately five billion dollars for enlarging the National Defense program, has brought a rather mixed reaction on Capitol Hill. It is being pointed out by some of the National leaders that Congress has already appropriated more than five billion dollars for direct National Defense purposes and has authorized appropriations of four billion dollars additional for the enlargement of the Navy as a part of the National Defense program. Also that the amounts already appropriated and authorized are as much as can be spent within the next year and a half to two years, and that any additional appropriation made at this time could not be expended for National Defense purposes for many months to come without waste and extravagance. That this last Presidential request, if it is made, for huge appropriations will be studied carefully before Congressional action is taken, is certain.

Walter Huffman Served Under Wendell Willkie

When Wendell Willkie was receiving the votes in the Republican national convention in Philadelphia last week, Walter Huffman of this place, just wondered if it was not the same Willkie he knew in service during the World War.

Mr. Huffman hunted up some war pictures taken in camp at Louisville and over in France and soon found a resemblance of the man who then was his lieutenant and now the Republican nominee for President.

Mr. Huffman has much praise for "Lieut." Willkie who was known in camp in Louisville and in France as an excellent officer, one very considerate of his men. He was firm and insistent on orders being followed to the letter but he never was gruff at any time.

Mr. Huffman says if his company was in headquarters during bad weather "Lieut." Willkie would discuss important events in connection with the service or give an informal lecture on some interesting topic. He was regarded a fine student and a reader on a number of subjects.

The Republican candidate will make his official acceptance speech at his old home in Ellwood, Ind., from the school house steps. Mr. Huffman says he wants to go to Ellwood on that date to be present at that time to meet his old "buddy". Moreover, Mr. Huffman says he expects to support the Republican nominee at the election this fall.

Lee Lemon, Waynesville farmer and contractor, has made use of a large ravine on his land along Route 12 west of Waynesville, and has erected a large dam that will hold water for fishing purposes. The spring is near the home on the north side of the road and flows under the road to the artificial lake.

The state takes over a three-acre tract on the north side of the road which has been donated by Mr. Lemon for a picturesque picnic grounds and which will be supported by the state for the benefit of travelers.

Immediate senate action on the resolution was demanded Friday by Senator Reynolds (D-NC) in view of the House passage by a 330 to 42 vote.

The Harry Bridges defense committee served notice at San Francisco that it would call for a nation-wide protest against the House for approving the legislation directing the attorney general to send Bridges, an alien, back to his native Australia at once.

Col. Black Issues Highway Warning

Exclaiming that the Highway Patrol will have more than they can handle with the heavy Fourth of July traffic, Colonel Lova Black, superintendent of the Ohio State Highway Patrol, Monday denounced the use of fireworks from moving vehicles on the Ohio highways.

Cowardly annoyance of motorists and pedestrians by tossing firecrackers into or near autos and on or near pedestrians is reckless disregard of life and limb, Black emphasized.

Citing that the Fourth of July traffic and fireworks casualties are perennially high, he declared that drivers, passengers and pedestrians who play with fireworks are dual hazards not to be tolerated. Someone may be injured by a recklessly tossed firecracker. Every auto driver owes his fellow men undivided attention to his driving. Passengers and pedestrians likewise should respect the driver's responsibility.

Scaring unsuspecting persons by explosions is by no means of the humorous nature, he stated. Nervous and high strung persons may be seriously shocked, lose control, and death, injury or both be the price of a dastardly prank.

Charleston To Have Wet-Dry Election

South Charleston and Madison township will have a wet and dry election in November, the first in nearly 25 years, if plans of the W. C. T. U. and other interested citizens go through. Petitions are being circulated in an effort to have the question placed on the ballot in the fall.

June Weather Did Not Uphold Record

June was an unusual month this year for weather, not so hot; dry in some sections, especially the southwest until the end of the month, and unusually wet for the central states.

The Columbus weather man says that it rained 20 of 30 days in the month in this section while in the northern part of Ohio around Lorain it rained every day of the month.

We notice in crossing the state and in parts of Pennsylvania and Maryland the corn crop is very irregular and a large percent has been cultivated but once. Many farmers everywhere have had to plant the crop twice which means a late crop.

In conversation with residents of Texas and Oklahoma, we find the wheat crop in these states was not good due to an excess of rain. Also the severe winter killed much of it which was weak due to the exceedingly dry fall after seeding.

Greene County Fair Opens July 30th

The Greene County Fair will open Tuesday, July 30, with a horse show each night. The race program is complete and promises to be as strong a feature as in the past. In the Wednesday two-year old stake trot with a purse of $250 a Silver Cup will be donated by Frank Creswell, local grain and live stock dealer.

The cattle classification has been revised to conform to State requirements and some changes have been made in the Sheep and Swine Department. The new swine and sheep bars will be ready for the fair opening.

Other attractions of interest will be the exhibits of the 4-H clubs, Junior Granges, Vocational Ag. and Home Economics. The Garden Clubs have a few additions to their list.

The Baby Beef show and the live stock parade will be held on Friday, both of which are big attractions.

With the fair celebrating its 101st birthday the slogan "An Old Fair with the Spirit of Youth" fits the fair program this year.

Fourth Of July Just Another Day

The Fourth of July will be just another day in this community as no special program has been arranged by any organization for observing the day. Farmers are busy with corn cultivation and harvest of barley and the hay crop and will be found at work in the field at least most of the day.

Small Colleges In Ohio A Fine Investment

In one of his "Today's Talks" recently, George Matthew Adams paid tribute to one of the features of America's educational system, not often stressed—the small college. He said:

"The small college is saturated with intimate associations and contacts. The student knows everybody in school—and most of the people in the town, if it is a small one, as it usually is. Teachers have a greater influence upon the lives of students in the small college, than they do in a larger one where hundreds compose a class.

"These graduates are clean, wholesome types of men and women—with earnestness and determination written upon their faces. They have come from farms, and small towns—the backbone of our democracy. It has meant great sacrifices, in many cases, for these young people to gain their education—but they amply repay their benefactors in later life.

"In these smaller schools two of the most essential elements in education are taught—to think for oneself, and to express oneself in simple, forceful language. A community, or state, can contribute to no finer investment than its small colleges."

This recognition of the merits of the small college is of particular interest to Ohioans, for this state has more than its share of this valuable type of institution. Reference books list 32 schools in this state—including those for men or women exclusively as well as the co-educational ones—with college ranking, which have less than 1000 students. The great majority of these have only a few hundred students with Alfred Holbrook and Cedarville the smallest with 140 and 116 enrollees, respectively.

Nowhere in the United States has the young man or woman with college degree aspirations the choice of a more varied array of prospective alma maters close at hand, or a better opportunity to choose from a long list of schools the one which fits his personal requirements as to curriculum, denominational sponsorship, cost or opportunity for specialization.

DEATH CALLS WIDOW OF PUBLISHER

Mrs. Edith Satterfield Blair, 77, widow of William H. Blair, former publisher of The Cedarville Herald, died at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Creswell, Xenia Ave., after an illness of more than a year due to complications.

The deceased was the daughter of James and Jane Milburn Satterfield and was born in Cedarville, June 11, 1863.

She was married to William H. Blair in 1894 and two years later relocated in Morrow, O., where the former was editor and publisher of the Morrow Tribune. Some years later Mr. Blair acquired the Tri-County Press at Loveland where she resided until 1913 when she moved to Cedarville. Mr. Blair died in 1909.

She was an active member of the Cedarville Methodist Church, was a past patron of Cedarville Chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and was a former member of Cedar Cliff Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution and the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Blair had been Cedarville correspondent for the Xenia Gazette for more than twenty years.

She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Frank Creswell, at home, a granddaughter, Sally Kay Creswell, and a number of nieces and nephews.

Judge Frank Johnson Issues Challenge For Communism Debate

The controversy between Judge Frank L. Johnson and Algo D. Henderson, president of Antioch College, over Communism which has been carried on in the papers by letters from each, now reaches the stage for a debate.

Challenging him to a public debate on the question, "Resolved: Antioch College's attitude toward Communism tends to undermine our government," Common Pleas Judge Frank L. Johnson addressed a letter Tuesday to President Algo D. Henderson, of Antioch.

The educator and jurist have been carrying on an exchange of letters published in the Herald, recently. Judge Johnson originally took exception to President Henderson's views after he and other members of the Antioch faculty had signed a petition upholding civil liberties of minority groups, including communists.

Judge Johnson said the time and place of the debate would be decided later if President Henderson accepts the challenge. The jurist indicated he would prefer a neutral site.

New Deal Asks Levies Tax For Defense Payments

Monday was tax day for Uncle Sam and liquor and cigarette dealers have had to come across, but the new tax will be added to the retail price Uncle Sam expects to collect $4,800,000 on cigarettes and $19,600,000 on liquor.

There will be a new tax on picture show and amusement tickets that cost more than 20c at the rate of one cent for each twenty cent ticket.

If mother or sister want to powder up a little the tax is increased another one percent. If you want a new auto the tax is increased from 3 to 3.5. Radios from 5 to 5.5, matches from 5 to 5.5 a thousand; electrical energy 5 to 5.5 per cent; gasoline increased one-half cent a gallon and lubricating oil from 4 to 4.5 a gallon; electrical refrigerators from 5 to 5.5 per cent; playing cards from 10 to 11c per pack and club dues from 10 to 11c per cent.

There will be an increase in the excess profits tax for corporations and individuals which means higher prices for what is sold over the counter or even by mail order.

Even these taxes will not meet the cost of defense and tax on many other articles will be added by congress after the November election. Congress has been appropriating over a billion dollars for the war and navy departments each year Roosevelt has been president, but the money went to many sources of the New Deal other than these two necessary departments.

WILL RECEIVE $4000

Greene and other counties in Ohio will receive $5,000 of automobile license revenues in a state equalization fund, Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, announced on Thursday. The money is earmarked for road purposes.

HERBERT HOOVER HAS LOST POLITICAL PUNCH

One of the greatest disappointments in the Republican convention was the speech of Herbert Hoover. There was a marked contrast between the Hoover of his first campaign and the Hoover of the last convention in Philadelphia. He has lost that "punch" in delivery which made him famous. He did not make the impression on the great audience that was expected. What he had to say was solid and a theory and doctrine that must be followed if we do not go the way of France and the smaller powers of Europe.

We understand his speech over the air was well received. This was not the case in the convention. Where there should have been raising infection and a gesture there was none. As to the former on the air the technician in the radio control room can give any speech the rise and fall as he thinks best.

From the standpoint of the Ohio delegation Hoover did not deliver his block of California votes to the Ohio candidate as expected and which had previously been agreed to between the leaders. Mr. Hoover is a sore and disappointed man. He is smarting yet under his defeat, most of which was his own fault, while it must be admitted he had a congress on his hands that would not co-operate. At no time did Hoover receive more than a few scattered votes for the nomination and these few no doubt gave rise to the thought that "lightning" might strike him if the other nominees failed to get a majority of votes. This was impossible for the reason his speech had failed to stir the delegates. It was a great disappointment.

Following the convention Hoover is credited with an interview reflecting in a way on the Republican nominee. This again was not the Hoover of earlier years. Whatever the personal view of any person may be as to the new nominee it must be kept in mind he is a hard-headed business man. He is a natural born fighter and no one knows this more than the New Dealers. He was the choice of a great majority who were determined to nominate a candidate that could fight fair or foul the traitorous crowd in control of the government.

Since the convention both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Willkie have met and it was a wordy battle of giants. If reports we get are correct and the press has given the facts, Willkie won on all points with Mr. Hoover.

Mr. Willkie has been a utility executive of unusual attainments and he fought the Socialistic TVA in the south and won against even packed courts. He is resigning all his business connections to devote his entire time to the campaign. He has demanded that Roosevelt be nominated in answer to barbs of criticism that he had once been a Democrat. His answer was that he did not leave the Democratic party but the party left him. Not having any place to go he was adopted by the Republican party just as Roosevelt adopted both Knox and Stimson, Republicans.

Mr. Willkie says his holdings in the utility company in which he was head were minor to the holdings of Franklin Roosevelt and members of the family, as well as the elder Roosevelt trust fund in General Electric. Mr. Willkie threatens to give the actual holdings of the Roosevelt family in this company that has for seven years had the first call on government orders for electrical equipment amounting to a hundred million dollars or more to equip plants at government constructed dams. It is intimated the Roosevelt family has drawn on an average of a million a year through salaries legally drawn; radio and book contracts, newspaper writings and income from utility company holdings.

The New Deal will find in candidate Willkie a match for any New Deal speaker that can be put on the platform. Roosevelt has been parading the nation for seven years with a "chip on his shoulder" and the display of "bring on your fighters" on the New Deal banner.

The scrap is on and will be continued until next November "with or without gloves". The challenge now is for the Democrats to nominate Roosevelt in Chicago this month.

Mr. Hoover no longer wields any great influence in his party yet his popularity has not been enhanced by his actions at the Philadelphia convention.

FOURTH OF JULY AND FIRES

With the Fourth of July at hand and the fire cracker as well as other devices for noise making in use by children, extra care should be given towards fire protection.

Municipal and state authorities have issued warnings calling attention to fire protection as well as danger to all in the use of fire works, some of which are harmless if handled in the proper manner. However, much of the damage and loss is due to carelessness.

The cigarette butt is as much of a menace as is the fire cracker. Here carelessness usually is found when a fire is attributed to that cause.

The danger to children is the most important warning and dealers in fire-works should keep in mind the responsibility under the Ohio law. No sale can be made legally to a child under twelve years of age. If property owners will read their insurance policies they may find their insurance is in jeopardy under a clause of storage of explosives in the building.

Three little girls lost their lives in the state of Pennsylvania last year due to the carelessness of another person and as a result public sentiment demanded greater protection. There was no protection possible other than to forbid the sale of any kind of fireworks within the state and the legislature passed such a law.

Good insurance is as good as the last "premium paid" receipt.

Ray Milland and Anna Neagle, are costars of the brilliant cinematic version of "IRENE" based on the great American musical comedy success of that name. In the company which Herbert Willkie has assembled for the EKO Radio production are also Richard Young, May Robson, and Billie Burke in featured roles. "IRENE" opens at the State Theater, Springfield, Sunday, July 2.

One of the interesting things in connection with the Republican National convention in Philadelphia was the use for the first time of television to report the convention.

The television equipment was set up on a platform on one side of the big auditorium and the motion picture people on the other. The reception device was set up in a down town hotel at Republican National headquarters, several miles from the convention. Here we witnessed every move of the convention, that part included in the pictures around the speaker's stand and could hear every word distinctly. The feature of each speaker was as lifelike as if we were in the convention hall. This marvelous invention will some day compete with both the talking picture and the radio. You would hear more about it today if the Federal Communications Commission, a New Deal board, would give the television people a chance to be seen and heard. The New Dealers say the public is not yet ready for television. That is the same brand of talk Hitler gives the Germans and Mussolini gives the Italians.

In the convention hall were erected ten of the most powerful flood electric lights ever used. These were so placed that the light would be cast on the speaker's platform. Part of the light fell on the section of the delegates close to the stage and the press section. The heat from these lights exceeds the heat of the sun at mid-day and when on for long intervals nearly smothered all those within the rays. The delegates and press complained and time after time Chairman Martin had to ask the motion picture people to turn off the lights to get relief. These lights made it possible for the motion picture people to get good views, as good as if taken in the bright sunlight.

Monday morning you started paying for the New Deal defense plan and after the November election you are going to pay still more on a lot of things not now included in the New Deal list. The liquor, cigarettes, amusement tickets, and a lot of other things are on the first list, often spoken of as non-essentials. The New Deal did not want to go all the way and include everything at this time but every day items will become taxable after the election in November, whether the New Deal is in power or not. Somebody must provide defense for this nation, a thing we do not have now, even though Roosevelt has had a billion a year for the army and navy for more than seven years. Sen. Clark, Dem., Mo., asks where this money has gone but he gets no reply, not even an excuse. Everyone knows it has been spent on either the navy or army. We had less men in each branch than we have had for years and more money provided each year by the Roosevelt congress. Sen. Clark says the money went down a "Rat hole with a politician rat at the other end of the hole".

The last congress provided for a new warship to be constructed in the Philadelphia navy yard, the largest in the world. The hull was laid in due time and the vessel is now nearing completion. The problem is now how to get the new boat down the river. It has been slipped out of the dry dock without the upper structure or interior structure. When this is done thousands of tons of weight will be added and then the bottom will drag in the mud of the river. Congress had to appropriate $1,400,000 to deepen the Delaware river so the boat when completed can be floated down the river to the ocean. It is but one of the many "well planned" Roosevelt brain-truster methods in which government business is being conducted.

A week ago the writer was a guest of Cong. Robert F. Jones, R., Lima, who with four Miami county citizens, including Speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives McCullough, that were permitted to take a trip through the Philadelphia navy yard, the first delegation to get in since May first when visitors were barred. There were 17,500 men on the payroll and the place was humming in every department. There was some new work started but most of the effort was re-conditioning vessels that have not had paint or care the past eight years. A hundred submarines used in the world war have laid in the harbor for years without even paint and the whole place looked more like a junk yard than anything else. Hundreds of men were busy cleaning rust, an eighth of an inch thick off vessels and equipment so that it could be painted. These subs are said to be in good condition mechanically other than rust in many places requires new repairs. These models are much smaller than the type being constructed today.

Congress wants to know why Roosevelt did not sell these subs to England and France instead of our modern war craft, the sale being made through the United States Steel, one of those "dollar-a-year" business ventures such as we had in the World War when the low rated business executives became millionaires before the war was over. It has developed that some of our own most modern airplanes have been captured by Hitler at Brest, France. On one was the famous sight that was said to be 100 per cent perfect for dive bombing, an invention that only this nation owned. This proves the treachery that has taken place within the secret places in our own government. Last Saturday we heard the roll call in the House when it was voted that Roosevelt could not sell, give away, or order destroyed any airplanes to be used for war purposes or any kind of war vessel or equipment without the consent of Congress.

The cry that this country should immediately declare war on Hitler, Stalin or Mussolini, comes from those who do not know that even this country is not prepared for war, even we cannot defend ourselves. We do not have the trained men nor the war equipment. This was true of England and France, both of which were unprepared but both sat back and awaited the Roosevelt pledge to King George that this country would provide both men and money. Hitler found both unprepared and now France blames both England, and to some extent the United States, for her plight in not having the promised support.

The Eastern states are for immediate war and the west is against war if we judge sentiment of many of the convention delegates. The fact that all big business is for war is proven by the thousands of telegrams sent to convention delegates in Philadelphia urging that we intervene abroad at once. Big business threatened hundreds of political leaders. It is known that the Pennsylvania delegation was not permitted to vote for a candidate from a state that would not back a platform plank for intervention. The cry was more business abroad if it took war to bring it about. Then it was also argued the Democratic convention would back Roosevelt and his war plans.

Business played a big part in forming support for Willkie and the Chamber of Commerce in every city and state began to high pressure delegates and political leaders, in many instances under threat of business boycott. This does not mean Willkie approved this method, but just that, happened with several leaders in Ohio. In a neighboring county to the south business men voted, all but one, to urge support of Willkie, regardless of the fact the delegates were elected by the people to support Taft. In another county a petition was circulated at the request of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce in a county seat to support Willkie. It seems business forgot that the Republican delegates were elected and pledged to support Ohio's favorite son candidate.

There probably never was, and may never be, another political convention where members of the opposing political party were as interested and active in seeing a certain candidate nominated than there was in Philadelphia. Scores of business men prominent in the Democratic party were present; thousands of others of that party telegraphed or wrote delegates and congressmen urging the nomination of a certain candidate as the only man that had the ability, the nerve or would use fire to fight fire in the defeat of Roosevelt. Democratic mothers over the nation had petitions urging the Republican party to stay out of the war, that if Roosevelt had his way we would be in war. We saw one letter from a Democratic mother to a delegate, pleading that the Republicans oppose the sending of either men or equipment to Europe and that she had no more confidence in a Roosevelt statement than she did in anything Hitler or Mussolini might promise. The recipient of the letter informed the writer that the husband of this woman was a delegate to the Democratic convention in Chicago when Roosevelt was first nominated, but that he would not support him again.

One of the things in political circles, as a result of the Republican convention, that is causing Democratic leaders plenty of worry as to who Roosevelt will nominate for president in case he declines reelection. It is certain that he is going to let the convention nominate him on the floor by acclamation so he can grandstand and decline. He will control the convention and name his successor. Some say it will be Sec. Hull, while others have Douglas singled out for the honor. Among the convention visitors were hundreds of one-time leading Democrats that will not support whoever Roosevelt nominates. It was from this class the Republicans were given to understand that Roosevelt was holding out for LaGuardia, the Socialist mayor of New York City. Paul Mallon, noted Washington columnist let this out Monday for the first time.

There has been nothing proposed or done by Roosevelt during the past seven years that has so burned the public conscience as naming Sidney Hillman, Communist CIO vice president to head the training of the boys and girls of 18 years of age when they are conscripted under Roosevelt's idea of building an army for the future. Hillman is a radical of radicals and an atheist, all of which should prove interesting to religious leaders of all Christian faiths. Communists in Russia are no different than the Communists in this country, all against all forms of the Christian religion. Just how rural counties like Greene will take to the Roosevelt idea of sending young boys and girls to a government camp under such leadership, is yet to be determined but we think we have the answer.

One of the outstanding features of the Republican National Convention at Philadelphia last week was the loyalty and effectiveness with which Governor Bricker supported the candidacy of Senator Taft for the Presidency. Although urged by delegates from many states to become a candidate and several boomlets were started in his behalf, Governor Bricker at all times refused to be a party to any such movements, stood firmly and loyally by Senator Taft and did much effective work for his fellow Ohioan, both before and during the convention. Finally, when candidate Willkie had received 504 votes, (501 being necessary to nominate) it was Governor Bricker's motion which made the Willkie nomination unanimous. Taft's high vote was 377. Yes, Ohio was very much in evidence at the Republican National Convention.

Secretary of State George C. Neff reports total receipts for the first six months of this year to have been $117,291, as compared with $104,648 for the same period last year—a gain of $12,643 for the Department of State.

The State Division of Conservation has leased, effective July 1, eleven new lakes, 366 miles of publicly-owned shoreline and 16,000 acres of water, from the Muskingum Conservancy District. Surrounding the lakes are 45,000 acres of land and forest areas, which will be ideal for hunting and other outdoor recreation purposes. All shorelines will be protected 100 feet back from the waterline for public use exclusively and the plan provides for frequent public park areas along the shorelines. These 11 new lakes will add approximately 50% to Ohio's inland lake capacity.

A recent check of the records of the State Purchasing Division reveals that Ohio saved more than $800,000 in 1939 by insisting on free competitive bidding and eliminating the political middle-man. Examples cited are the $125 per million paid for sales tax stamps in 1938 as against the $84 per million now being paid—the annual saving on this item alone being $78,000. In 1938 the state paid $194 per million for cigarette tax stamps and now they are purchased for $105 per million, and the state saves the difference. In adopting a "Buy Ohio Products" policy, the state, so far this year, has purchased $770,000 worth of Ohio beet sugar, as against 50,000 pounds of the Ohio product purchased by the former administration in 1938. During the last year of the Davey administration, nearly 2,000,000 pounds of cane sugar, grown outside the state, was purchased. The state, this year, has bought 80,000 pounds of lard from Ohio farmers. Previously the state bought vegetable shortening exclusively, produced outside the state. The records of the State Purchasing Division are open to the public and the figures here cited can be easily verified at any time.

More than $2,000,000 worth of farming machinery will be displayed on the 15-acre machinery field at the 90th Ohio State Fair, August 24-30, according to State Fair Manager Win H. Kinnaman. The displays will include every type of mechanical equipment used on the farm. Bookings of free entertainment stands are now being made daily and already, 22 of the finest and most sensational circus and vaudeville acts obtainable have been contracted for. The nightly grandstand show this year will be "Wake Up and Cheer". More than 100 of the leading aerialists, tumblers and specialty actors in America are in the cast.

As a result of the new bill passed by the special session of the Legislature increasing the appropriation for old age pensions, State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood estimates that 5,800 new pensioners will be added to the rolls during July. He predicted the pension rolls by August 1 will reach 124,000 contrasted with the previous high of 123,000 in December 1939.

Five hundred reserve officers in Ohio have been called to duty effective July 1, for a one-year period to assist the regular army in the training of recruits of the rapidly expanding military establishment, according to Brig. Gen. C. B. Hodges, commanding the Fifth Corps Area. A number of specially qualified officers will be assigned to foreign service of two years' duration, he said.

Enrollment in the CCC camps will be open to 3729 Ohio youth, aged 17-18, in July and for the first time the selections will not be limited to youths from families on relief rolls, so states Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, in charge.

APPROVED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REMARKS BY LUTHER L. LANTZ, D. D., Pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Cedarville, Ohio.
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 7

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected by the National Bible Institute, Cincinnati, Ohio. Approved by the National Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

JOB TEMPTED TO DOUBT GOD'S GOODNESS

LESSON TEXT—Job 2:1-13.
GOLDEN TEXT—Job 1:21. "I have heard that thou art a perfect man, nor charged God foolishly."—Job 1:22.

Poetry has in all ages been the language of the soul. Feelings beyond the reach of the choicest prose seem to pour forth unhindered through the poetic channel. That is one reason why Christian people find such a response in their own souls as they read the magnificent poetry of the Bible. For the next three months we are to be privileged to carry on a study of the poets of the Bible. None of us should miss a single lesson.

The book of Job deals with and solves the fundamental problem, "What is the meaning of the suffering of the righteous?" Our first lesson presents Satan as the great adversary and accuser of man, and reveals that man may successfully resist him by faith in God.

I. Satan's Accusation (vv. 1-5). The lesson opens with a scene in heaven, where the angelic beings present themselves to give an account of their activities. Satan, too, is there as the adversary and accuser of men's souls. He had already won God's permission and as a test of Job's faith, destroyed all of Job's property and taken from him his family (see Job 1:14-19), but he had not destroyed Job's trust in God (1:21).

Now Satan had a new charge; namely, that Job could bear the loss of his children and his riches, but if God would permit his own body to be afflicted, he would deny God. It is the familiar refuge of those who would lie about the servants of God to say, "He is in it for what he gets out of it." Those who use that lie do well to recognize the originator of their calamity; they are working with Satan when they thus hinder the Lord's work.

II. Spiritual Integrity (vv. 6-10). The trial of Job was severe, for only his life was spared. His affliction was evidently not only that of boils on his skin (which would have been bad enough), but a systemic condition which made his whole body sick and made him so repulsive as to be unfit to live with other people (see Job 7:1-5, 14, 15; 16:8; 17:12-20).

Not only did he suffer physically within an inch of his life, but he was subjected to the mental and spiritual torture of having the one who should have stood by him—his wife—urge him to renounce his faith in God and die. Many who have borne excruciating physical pain have broken down under spiritual cruelty, but Job still maintained his integrity.

Why God permitted him to suffer he did not yet understand, but he knew God and he was willing to take from His hand evil as well as good (v. 10) as long as His heavenly Father was in control. What a testimony!

III. Sympathetic Friendship (vv. 11-13). His wife and neighbors had abandoned Job, and even the children of the street despised him (18:18), but he did have three friends. Thank God for friendship—not the fair-weather kind, but the type that stands by in the hour of trouble. These friends apparently came from a distance (vv. 11, 12) and at some sacrifice of time, effort and money.

Friendship that doesn't cost anything usually doesn't amount to anything. Note the intelligent and sympathetic manner in which they shared his sorrow. They were themselves sorrowful (v. 12) and they sat with him, not saying a word. In the hour of deepest need words are futile and often only add to the sorrow, but how much it means in such an hour to have someone who will silently, and yet sympathetically, stand by. One could wish that his friends had continued as they began and not later have spoiled their comfort by many important soundings but foolish words which the Lord had to condemn in the serious words found in Job 42:7, 8.

We shall see the answer to the question regarding suffering in our lesson for July 21 as being that man might be brought to really know God and to see himself in the light of God's holiness. Thus, by victory through testing, man proves to himself and to his fellow men that God is worthy of our fullest confidence, that faith in Him will bring us through the deepest darkness and the severest trial.

Roots of Evil
To abolish evil its roots must be dug up and exposed in the sunlight, where they will wither and perish. These roots thrive underground and are cancerous.

No More Vanity
Ye shall see no more vanity, nor divine divinations; for I will deliver my people out of your hand; and ye shall know that I am the Lord.—Ezekiel 13:23.

Temperance Notes

Cedarville W. C. T. U.

Homer, the blind but perceptive bard, once wrote: "Even the wise when made aggressive by wine shall fall to chatter words which were better far unspoken." An anonymous modern writer recently said the same thing in another way: "The 'tighter' the drinker gets, the looser he becomes."

Through the generosity of the late Mrs. Ada Mohr-Landis of Reading, Pa., the Women's Christian Temperance Union conducts annual prize contests to secure original material, suitable for platform readings, which has never before been published.

"Beverage alcohol," said "the doctor who knew," as quoted in Grit, "gives you a red nose, a black eye, a white liver, a yellow streak, a green brain, a dark brown breath, and a blue outlook." A color scheme that wouldn't "make a hit" with a truly artistic soul!

Several centuries ago: "There is never a body of a man, how strong and stout soever, if he is troubled and inflamed, but will take more harm and offense by wine being poured into it." The same is true today under repeal.

The liquor bill for America in 1938 was $5,000,000,000, nearly half of the nation's total bill for food, clothing, house, home-building—normal expenses. There is now in America one licensed place for the sale of liquor for every 209 persons—an all time record. This includes drug stores and all places where liquor is sold as a beverage.

The Redskin's Wisdom—Some years ago three Indians in the neighborhood of Green Bay became converts to temperance, although previously they had been very fond of the "brain thief." Three men formed the lamentable resolution of trying to draw them back. Placing a canteen of whiskey in their path they hid themselves in the bushes to observe the effect. The first Indian recognized his old acquaintance with an "Oh!" and, making a high step, passed on. The second laughed, saying, "Me know you," and walked away. The last one drew his tomahawk, and dashed the canteen to pieces saying, "Ugh, you conquer me; now I conquer you!"—R. B. McDowell.

After Forty Years

By Charles Evans Lamale

The old teacher of the Sanders District School had returned. He carried in his brief-case a photograph of the pupils and a three photograph of which was taken in June, 1900. He located John Rogers one of the older pupils on a well-cultivated farm near the site of the former school which had given way to centralization of the township's educational system.

"You don't know me," said Mr. Lantz, the ex-captain teacher who is now a utilities executive in Michigan. "I wonder if you can guess who?"

"Well, let's see," replied John Rogers, thinking of the smiling caller closely. "You're not Perry Bascomb?"

"No. You had I used to be in the school room together," said the visitor.

"Ah, Clarence Smith?" ventured John.

"No. I used to stand up before you in school, and suggest what you should do," said the past instructor.

"Oh, I got you now. You are Gilford Lantz who taught our school a long time ago," exclaimed John with evident pleasure. He was right.

It was the first meeting after forty years. John introduced his wife Hattie who was from the Lantz neighborhood. They told of their children living in homes of their own. Now they were alone again, after thirty-six years of married life. Mr. Lantz knew Hattie when she was a girl, but had never heard that she and John had wed.

Mr. Lantz then drew out the photograph. There were the twenty-six pupils. In the doo-way stood the three directors. "They are all dead," said John. "Mr. Harris was killed outright when his auto was struck by a train at a crossing near Stony Ridge. His wife who was with him lived four days after the accident. They were returning from a wedding.

John accounted for each pupil except the Bell children who had come with their parents from Sarnia, Ontario. They lived in the district only while their father was employed in the oil fields. Philip Harris is a farmer two miles south, and Manny Harris a mile north. Bertha Smith has been married and divorced several times. "I do not know her present name. I think she lives in Fairmont," explained John. "Herb Davis went to Cleveland. Perry Smith lost his life in France during the World War. They brought his body home. He is buried in Ridge Cemetery. There's Emery, Ralph, Beatrice, Helen, Cleota and Otto. They are all married and live around here. Frieda was killed in an auto accident just three weeks ago. Clayton works in the Laketon elevator."

It was a word picture of an average rural American group, after forty years. Some were quite successful, others less so. The joys and sorrows of life had visited them. None were known to have fallen into the hands of the civil law. Common moral standards prevailed. The church was respected. It had fostered high ideals and goodwill. The district school made its contribution of learning and co-operation. The net result after four decades was a worthy group of good citizens who appreciate peace and the opportunity to serve their generation helpfully.

"Come again," said John Rogers as his old teacher left for his vacation cabin.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

At Miami Chatauqua

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, will speak at Miami Valley Chatauqua, Franklin, O., under the auspices of the Annual Assembly program, Sunday afternoon, July 14. In addition to social activities as the nation's First Lady, Mrs. Roosevelt finds time to fill between thirty and forty lecture engagements each season, write an occasional book and magazine article, keep a syndicated newspaper column going six days a week and watch over the affairs of her children and grandchildren.

Her books include her autobiography, "This Is My Story," "It's Up to the Women," a commentary on current affairs, and "My Day," excerpts from her newspaper column. She has also edited and collected her father's papers under the title, "Hunting Game in India in the Eighties."

Born in 1884, educated by private governesses and abroad, Eleanor Roosevelt became engaged to her fifth cousin once removed when she was 19. The wedding was on St. Patrick's day, 1905, because that was the day her uncle, President Theodore Roosevelt, who was to give her in marriage (her mother died when she was seven and her father when she was ten) was coming to New York to take part in the St. Patrick's Day Parade.

After two honeymoons (a brief one at Hyde Park because her husband's law studies at Columbia University could not be interrupted and a longer one during the following summer in Europe), she settled down to the conventional life of a young society matron. Her winters were spent at the Roosevelt town house in Manhattan and at Hyde Park and her summers in Maine.

Her five children, one daughter and four sons, social functions and an occasional charity occupied her entire time and attention. In spite of the fact that she was constantly in and out of Washington during two administrations of her uncle, President Theodore Roosevelt, and during the Wilson Administration when her husband was assistant secretary of the Navy, she says that she did not take a really active interest in political affairs until her husband's unsuccessful campaign for the vice-presidency in 1920.

Mrs. Roosevelt is today generally acknowledged to be one of the best informed women in the nation on conditions throughout the United States. Her lecture engagements, her travels to the homes of her children, and her varied interests take her to all parts of the country where through personal contact, study and investigation, she keeps a knowing finger on the pulse of affairs.

During the past week large posters and cards have appeared throughout the Miami Valley announcing Mrs. Roosevelt's lecture at Chatauqua and tickets have been placed on sale at the Chatauqua office.
